五、阅读选择

Read and choose. (阅读短文，选择正确选项。)

Dan lived in a small house in a village. One night, he was awakened by a noise. He thought it might be a thief. He took a stick and went out of his bedroom. When he went into the kitchen, he found a fox struggling in the water tank. When Dan looked at the fox, he found its eyes filled with tears. He dropped the stick and saved the fox from the water tank. After a few months, the fox came back to Dan at midnight. Dan brought some meat and water to the fox, but the fox didn't eat anything. It snapped at one of Dan's shoes, and pulled out hard. Dan followed the fox to the open yard. When he looked back, he found his house fell down. It was an earthquake. The fox saved his life. He was surprised. He cried, "Thank you so much!"

六、阅读判断

Read and judge. (阅读短文判断对错，对的写“T”，错的写“F”。)

Our feelings are always changing. Sometimes we're happy. Sometimes we're sad. Sometimes we're excited. Sometimes we're worried. When we get a nice gift, we may feel happy or even excited. But when we lose it, we may feel upset. People have different feelings on one thing. For some people, they may feel sad when a game is over, but for other people, they may feel happy. People show their feelings differently. For some people, we can see their feelings from their faces or in their eyes, or by the tone of their voice. But for other people. We can't find their real feelings easily. Everyone has good days and bad days. Sometimes it is helpful to share our feelings with others. Talking to other people about our feelings can help us relax and feel better.

32. Feelings do not often change. (      )
33. People will not feel sad if they lose something. (      )
34. Everyone feels sad when a game is over. (      )
35. Not all the people show their feelings on their faces. (      )
36. Sharing our feelings with other people can help us feel relaxed. (      )
